"AN INDEPENDENTLY OWNED AND OPERATED BUDGET SYSTEM LICENSEE"

November 1 and deadline for filing 2010 tax returns is looming

ORANJESTAD -- Angeline Geerman-Giel, inspector in the Personal Income Tax Department, welcomed island media to remind the public that the deadline for filing their personal tax returns is only one week away, November 1.

As in the past, stations staffed with personnel from the tax office have been set up at convenient locations around the island to assist in filling out and filing the forms, free of charge. Monday through Saturday all this week citizens can bring their forms and all statements of income, interest and other deductible expenses to the main office at Camacuri, to Don Bosco in Noord, next to the Santa Anna Church, or to the YMCA in San Nicolas to fill in and file their forms. Hours are from 8:00 AM to 4:00 PM. The final day to take advantage of this service will be Monday, October 31.

Conditions to qualify for assistance from tax staff are:

- Unmarried and earning up to Afl. 50.000, - gross per year
- Married with a combined income no more than Afl. 100.000, - gross per year
- Do not own a business or operating as a freelance professional
- A salaried employee

Aruba Meteorological Department issues special weather advisory for Aruba

A strong wave in the eastern Caribbean moving westward has been effecting the weather in Aruba since last night and is expected to continue today in the morning hours with some moderate to heavy thundershowers. This will cause as usual some flash floodings on the island. During the passage we will experience some strong winds around 22 knots.

Desperate hunt for survivors after Turkey quake carnage

ERCIS (AFP) - Rescuers scrambled through the rubble yesterday in a desperate search for survivors of an earthquake that killed at least 272 people in Turkey as residents fled the scenes of devastation.

People living in eastern Van province issued cries for help on Twitter, giving out the addresses of collapsed buildings and the number of people trapped under the debris.

Hundreds of rescuers worked around the clock in the town of Ercis, which bore the brunt of the quake and the surrounding villages, as scores of ambulances and medical supplies were rushed to the area.

Some 272 people were confirmed killed by the 7.2 magnitude earthquake which struck around lunchtime on Sunday in the Van province, according to Interior Minister Idris Naim Sener. An earlier estimate put the toll at 264.

"We couldn't understand what was going on -- all of a sudden there was dust everywhere, our eyes were full of dust, and we were thrown against the walls and furniture. It lasted 20 seconds," Ercis resident Yunus Ozmen said.

"We spent the night outside in the street and made a fire to keep warm," said the 23-year-old as he recounted the moment when disaster struck, forcing many out of doors to spend the night in freezing temperatures.

His neighbour Abdul Hadi Isik said that his aunt and her children were buried under the rubble.

"There is no hope left," he added.

Some 169 people were killed in Ercis, while 95 died in Van city center, the Anatolia news agency quoted Sener as saying. A total of 970 buildings had collapsed as a result of the quake and aftershocks, including a dormitory in Ercis under which many students were believed to be buried.

Around 1,200 rescue officials were working in the town of Ercis, according to the local crisis center.

ARUBA IN STYLE welcomes production manager Ainsley Connell

Ainsley Connell with ARUBA IN STYLE organizers

Island fashionistas and glitterati are counting down the days until ARUBA IN STYLE Fashion week officially opens for a weekend of famous designers parading their new collections on the runways and around pool decks for an exotic event boasting a number of celebrity models and observers.

AIS founders Ronchi de Cuba, Eva Wever and Damalce Mansur welcomed Ainsley Connell to Aruba this past Sunday; a veteran production manager, he will handle all the details and every aspect of AIS, making sure the event runs smoothly. After preparatory sessions on Sunday morning with local models and staffers, he sat with THE MORNING NEWS to offer some insights on the fabulous fashion shows and collections that will be on view for ticket holders from 3:30 to 9:30 PM at the Renaissance Convention Center Friday and Saturday, November 4 and 5.

A graduate of Nassau Community College with a degree in Marketing and Communications, he has been producing such events for the past 15 years and staged them in New York, Miami, Los Angeles along with a number of single designer shows in London and other locales.

TMN: How did you start producing Fashion Weeks?

Ainsley: I began working for a small designer in New York, and I decided I want to work more in production, so I went on to IMG, which is the AIS partner for this fashion week, and then after 5 years, went on my own and started my own company.

TMN: First time on Aruba?

Ainsley: Yes, and I am so grateful for this opportunity; I have fallen in love with Aruba.

TMN: What do you think of Aruba's fashion scene? Who the people dress...the shops?

Ainsley: I think Aruba can really become the epicenter for Caribbean fashion, I think there are a lot of great things going on here already. With the advent of AIS there is great opportunity to expand more. I think this will help to bring more of a fashion presence to Aruba.

TMN: Do you think the Caribbean needs something like that?

Ainsley: Absolutely. Any type of awareness for people to come to the island is great, but there are certain people who are extremely interested in fashion, so events like this make it twofold for them. They can come and have a great vacation and experience fashion and see great designers and have a wonderful experience in Aruba.

TMN: A person on vacation to Aruba who has been to other islands commented she had never seen such fashion centers on other islands as here. Have you traveled the region, do you agree with that statement?

Ainsley: I don't want to say from that perspective, but I will say I am pleasantly surprised by the number of designer stores to be found on the Aruba, and their absolute interest in being here, which I feel is very good for the island. It is a burgeoning situation here, fashion is obviously very important.

Young island models ready to hit the runways

TMN: The nature of AIS is very much focused in regional designers, do you think it will spark interest in this.

Ainsley: It certainly helps the Latin, Caribbean and Dutch designers to show their work in such a venue, as it stimulates interest and awareness in their culture, design and their countries. Actually, it is very important.

TMN: Do you think there are certain characteristics that define regional designers over American and European?

Ainsley: For me, it is color. It is vibrant and something they take to further lengths. Their use of color is so incredible; for me the explosion of color is always something great.

TMN: I have noticed that at most gala occasions in the northeast U.S., the standard color is black...would you welcome more of this explosion of color-some new trends along that way?

Ainsley: Well, I think black can be a very safe color for people, and to step outside of that is sometimes difficult. However, we do have, thanks to Latin designers; we do have that happening, especially the shows this year, even for fall, you see a lot of bright colors. So I do think it is being carried over to the States as well. I feel giving the designers the distinct venues we have here in Aruba as a backdrop, will absolutely bring a positive light to what they are doing with their collections.

As an added value to the Saturday runway shows, AIS is offering Fashion Sessions beginning at 1:00 PM with fashion icons Nole Marin, a judge from "America's Next Top Model" who has organized spreads for Elle Magazine and from Colombia, Pilar Castagno, former editor of Colombia Fashion Week. Tickets are available at the AIR IN STYLE office in Renaissance Mall.

"Rethinking Aruba" captures attention of private and public sectors in Canada

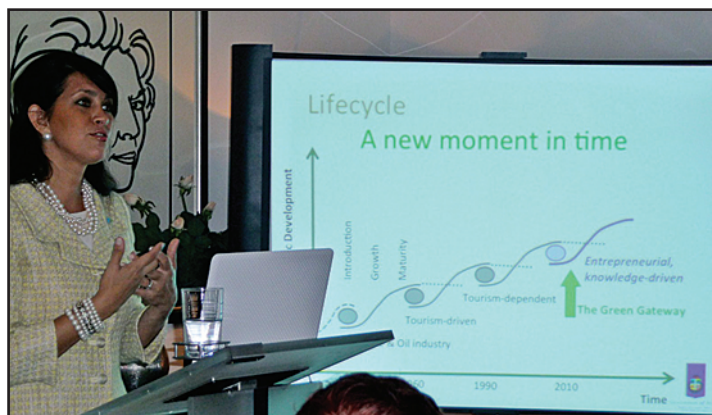

About 25 of Canada's private and public sector persons were invited last week for a presentation by the government of Aruba at the home of the Ambassador of the Dutch Kingdom in Canada. Aruba's Minister of Economic Affairs, Michelle Winklaar-Hooyboer, gave a presentation titled, "Sustaining Economic Competitiveness in the Caribbean: Rethinking Aruba." Those in attendance were very impressed and felt a strong urge to either invest in Aruba or to work more closely with Aruba.

Among those present were the representative of the Department of Foreign Affairs and International Trade Officer of Latin America and the Caribbean, and the Deputy Director of the Caribbean for this same department of the Canadian government. Along with several other dignitaries of the Canadian government, there were a number of citizens from the private sector in attendance. Among those from the private sector was the director of "Export Development Canada," who showed great interest in Aruba and for the various projects being planned for the near future.

The President of the "Women's Business Network" was also in attendance. This organization is charged with organizing business programs for women, and with developing programs to prepare women to occupy high executive positions in the private sector. They stand ready to help Aruba with the same type of planning which will help move more Aruban women to, likewise, move into top positions in Aruba.

Then, there was the Vice President of "Canadian Manufacturers and Exports" who invests in different types of projects. Currently their focus is much more on "green" projects with a preference for "waste management."

They have followed Aruba's plans very closely and were impressed with the speed with which Aruba has and is developing the economy of the island.

In addition to representatives from Canada, executives from the Dominican Republic, Jamaica and Barbados were also in the company of attendees at Aruba's presentation.

During the speech of the Dutch Ambassador of the Kingdom, Wim Geerts, he remarked that Aruba is the country with the most impressive economic development of all the countries in the entire Dutch Kingdom. He indicated that he would be happy to have the Embassy serve as a center for information and to facilitate every interested Canadian entity wanting to invest in Aruba or to do business with Aruba.

The Aruba Minister, Michelle Winklaar-Hooyboer, in her discourse presented Aruba's economic plan "Green Gateway" with a focus on the opportunities for investment with respect to the plans that are currently in the works. With the current sustainable projects, the strategic geographical position of Aruba as a hub between the most important continents, Aruba definitely offers a unique opportunity to investors and business owners in Canada.

The Aruba government's intention is to continue attracting more big companies or investment entities to come and invest in Aruba and stimulate more interchange with local and international companies here.

It is with this same focus that Winklaar-Hooyboer has already been to Holland and to the United States with similar presentations. Last week it was Canada's turn to learn about the progress of Aruba and the potential for investment and business on our one happy island.

Pointers to Ponder?

Tony A.D. Green www.people-self-development.com

The Price of Progress isn't cheap!

There isn't a soul out there who doesn't want things to be better and more attractive, everybody wants the best of everything, everybody wants to make progress and be part of new developments.....we Arubans too!

In the past two years, we have witnessed a myriad of changes, new developments and the prospect of new things keep lurking every day as they are unfolded to us. As a matter of fact Aruba has been in an uphill spiral of economic development for some years now.

However, the downward economic trend worldwide did hit us hard and we experienced a downward slide in the last few years.

But, we are rapidly recovering from the economic crisis which gripped the world and we are seeing a new day dawning. The government and the private sector are making big strides to ensure that we keep growing and expanding the economy.

But, we must stop a moment and realize an inevitable reality....there is a price to pay for any measure of progress. No country, and Aruba is no exception, can make progress, can grow economically, without paying the price for progress. The stark reality is progress is usually very high....it costs much. The cost is not so much in dollars and cents, but most assuredly in time, energy, brawn and frustration.

With economic prosperity comes the pain of dissidents who believe they can devour what is not theirs. Stealing, vandalism, destruction of public property, robbery seem to increase hand in hand with economic progress. We are seeing some of this here lately. This is the price we pay for economic growth.

The downtown shopping area of Oranjestad is currently being completely overhauled. It looks worse than when a mechanic removes the entire engine from a vehicle and sits it up on a block to be overhauled. There are holes and gutters and rocks and sand and dust every where, and with the rain we need to add....a lot of mud and puddles! But, we have seen the blueprints of what the final outcome will be....it looks simply fantastic and is expected to be nothing less than practical and enchanting when it is all done. There is no question about whether we will be happy with the beauty of it all.....we will be!

But, the price for that beauty down the road some 5, 8, 10, 12, 14 months is so very high. Our merchants who depend on traffic for their business is paying the price of no traffic and no sales while they wait for the project to be completed. Pedestrians are paying the price of not being able to walk in and out of the area. Our valued visitors are discouraged by the construction mess and wish they had better walking spaces to get in and out. But then again.....I repeat, this is the price we must pay for progress. Everybody feels frustrated, annoyed, angry,... me too! I know, and I agree with you,...it could have been organized and orchestrated better! But, instead, let's look at what it will eventually become for us tomorrow when it is all completed. What we need now more than anything is a big dose of patience and understanding.....it will be over soon, and we will be proud of the finished project.

Say what you will now,you will be proud of it too!

Airport's leaking roof gets immediate attention!

ORANJESTAD -- Last Friday, Minister Otmar Oduber headed to the International-Reina Beatrix Airport to personally survey the situation of water leakage at the airport. This leak was caused by the heavy rainfall that the island received.

Oduber met with the persons responsible for determining the cause of the leakage. They observed that various areas in the airport were under water. They discovered that there are two primary reasons for the leaking situation. One reason is that the largest area of the airport, which is the area where the shops are; which was renovated back in 2009, was not done correctly...very poor workmanship in view of the numerous leaks in the entire area.

The other reason for the problem is that the overflow-channels are unable to handle the enormous amount of water from such an unusually heavy down pour of rain.

The Minister made contact immediately with the President of the Board of Directors of the Airport to attend to the situation with urgency within the context of the investments currently taking place at the airport. Oduber indicated that it is prudent to have a budget in place for such situations. He emphasized that it is imperative that the situation be corrected rapidly as we are approaching the rainy season.

The Minister was pleased to learn that airport personnel had already begun to deal with the problem. They had already solicited the services of roof repair experts as well as for persons to expand the water drainage system. Oduber had words of praise for the pro-active approach of the airport's maintenance team. It is expected that within a matter of days, one to two days, the situation will be taken care of.

Bon Bini Festival is tonight

ORANJESTAD -- The weekly Bon Bini Festival takes place tonight at the Fort Zoutman in Wilhelminastraat. Come mingle with the locals and enjoy a taste of Aruban culture.

This week the festival will feature the traditional Aruba caha di orgel by Nos Cultura, folkloric music by Tipico Arco Iris, dance performance by The Super Dancers, trio performance by Jacobs Family, poem declaimed by Laura Kock, soloist Quincy Hasham and brass band TBS. The event will be hosted by Ryan Maduro.

During the festival there will be local food, sweets and traditional local arts and crafts on sale.

Arubus has regular busses from all hotels areas to Oranjestad Central Terminal, which is only a short walk from Fort Zoutman. Round trip bus fare is $2.30. The festival is from 6:30 pm to 8:30 pm. Entrance fee is $3.

Come and experience a taste of our 'dushi' Aruba.

Aruba is vibrating with excitement...so much is happening this week!

ORANJESTAD -- Aruba has embarked on a week when several very significant events are scheduled to take place. Of significant importance is the Royal visit of Her Majesty the Queen of the Netherlands, then the second Aruba Green Conference, the signing of the TNO contract, the commencement of the Rietveld Art Academy, then there is the celebration of the 25th anniversary of Parliament, and the inauguration of the House of Europe.

Each of the above mentioned activities are in the interest and for the benefit of Aruba, which again enables Aruba to shine on the world stage. It has been a long time since Aruba has had so many wonderful events in such a short span of time.

After many weeks of dilligent preparation, the alternative and sustainable energy conference, the Aruba Green Conference II, will open. At the same time top executives of the TNO of TU Delft will be on Aruba for the signing of the contract to open a center of investigation and research here on the island. Also, "Cas di Europa" (the House of Europe) will open its doors and students of the Rietveld Academy will begin their course of study in art here in Aruba.

If that were not enough, this year Aruba also celebrates the 25th anniversary of the Status Aparte (apart status within the Dutch Kingdom). And, on the 25th of October Aruba's Parliament was formally instituted and this historic occasion also deserves remembering and celebrating!

Green Aruba
Just like last year, this year Aruba's Green Conference has a line up of some of the most outstanding personalities on sustainability and alternative energy; individuals respected around the globe for their expertise on and dedication to green energy. These men and women will be here to share their knowledge with us and to offer a helping hand where necessary in our quest for green energy. Interesting and perhaps heated discussions will be conducted during this Aruba Green Conference II. Information, suggestions and proposals forthcoming from this conference will certainly be taken into account and what can be applied will be applied soon after. Looking back at last year's Green Conference, this is exactly what transpired. That which was agreed upon in that conference has been effected during this year.

Cas di Europa
The House of Europe will be a tremendous asset to Aruba. His Royal Highness the Prins of the Netherlands will be the keynote speaker at the mega Green Conference here. The European Commissioner for Development, Mr. Piebalgs arrives here on Thursday to inaugurate the House of Europe. He is scheduled to speak at the Conference on the same day of his arrival to Aruba. The House of Europe will be a center of information which will serve as a bridge for European entrepreneurs and business owners who want to enter the Latin American market. Likewise, Latin American companies who want to do business with countries in Europe will be able to do so via Aruba. This, arrangement will, obviously, be very lucrative for Aruba!

The House of Europe will be of great importance to Aruba in the further development of our economy. Reportedly, all eyes are on Aruba as she takes huge steps forward towards sustainable development in all its facets.

Rina forecast to reach hurricane strength today

MIAMI (AFP) - Newly-formed Tropical Storm Rina is strengthening off Central America's Caribbean coast and is forecast to grow into a hurricane by late today, threatening on an already-waterlogged region.

Rina, which spent days nagging the coastline of Honduras as a disorganized depression, has now coalesced into a storm that could power up dramatically before barreling into Belize and Mexico's Yucatan peninsula by the end of the week, according to the US National Hurricane Center.

The 17th named storm of the Atlantic hurricane season was packing sustained winds of 45 miles (72 kilometers) per hour and was tracking to the northwest at six miles per hour.

"Additional strengthening is expected during the next 48 hours and Rina is forecast to become a hurricane by tonight," the Miami-based NHC said in its 1500 GMT bulletin.

While it is still several days off, the NHC forecasts Rina will head directly over the popular Mexican tourist island of Cozumel on Friday, and the US agency urged authorities in the Yucatan peninsula and in Belize to closely monitor the storm's path and send out warnings when appropriate.

Rina's center was about 190 miles southwest of Grand Cayman island -- where up to four inches (10 centimeters) of rain was forecast -- as it passed north of the Honduran coast, NHC said.

Rina could unleash up to five inches of rain in some areas, a heavy dose but less than some parts of Central America received in recent weeks amid near-constant deluges.

Libya aims for govt in two weeks, forms Kadhafi probe

BENGHAZI (AFP) - Libya's interim leader Mustafa Abdel Jalil set a two-week target yesterday for the country to have a new government and said a commission of inquiry will probe Moammar Kadhafi's killing.

"We have begun talks (on forming a government), and this matter will not take a month but will be finished within two weeks," the National Transitional Council (NTC) chairman told a news conference in the eastern city of Benghazi.

A day after the NTC's declaration of Libya's liberation in the wake of Kadhafi's capture and death, Abdel Jalil also said a commission of inquiry is being set up to probe the controversial killing of the fallen strongman.

"In response to international calls, we have started to put in place a commission tasked with investigating the circumstances of Moammar Kadhafi's death in the clash with his circle as he was being captured," Abdel Jalil said.

And after having raised concern in the West by stressing on Sunday that the new Libya will be governed in line with Islamic sharia law, the NTC chief gave assurances it would remain a "moderate" Muslim country.

"I would like to assure the international community that we as Libyans are Muslims but moderate Muslims," he said.

The French foreign ministry said Paris will keep a watch over Libya's respect for human rights after the promise of a system of sharia to run post-Kadhafi Libya.

"We will be watchful of respect for human rights and democratic principles, notably cultural and religious diversity and the equality of men and women to which France is unswervingly attached," ministry spokesman Bernard Valero said.

And EU foreign policy chief Catherine Ashton said the introduction of sharia in Libya must respect human rights.

Abdel Jalil's two-week timeline came as Libya's new leaders embarked on the tough task of forging an interim government uniting disparate political forces after 42 years of Kadhafi's iron-fisted rule, under which sharia took a back seat.

"Today, we begin preparing for a new phase... the phase after the liberation, the phase that we will plan and work hard for the future of Libya," said Abdel Hafiz Ghoga, vice chairman of the NTC.

"Let us start work on the adoption of the constitution," he said Sunday as he declared liberation from Kadhafi's rule at a rally attended by tens of thousands of revellers in Benghazi, birthplace of the anti-Kadhafi revolt.

Under an NTC roadmap, an interim government is to be formed and then polls for a constituent assembly to draft a new basic law held within eight months -- the first democratic vote since Kadhafi came to power in a 1969 coup.

WikiLeaks suspends file publishing due to funding crisis

LONDON (AFP) - WikiLeaks has been forced to suspend publishing classified files after a funding blockade and could have no option but to shut down by the end of the year, founder Julian Assange announced yesterday.

The whistleblowing website has seen its funding plunge by 95 percent due to an "arbitrary and unlawful financial blockade" mounted by companies including Visa and MasterCard since December last year, Assange said in London.

"In order to ensure our future survival, WikiLeaks is now forced to temporarily suspend its publishing operations and aggressively fundraise in order to fight back against this blockade and its proponents," he said.

"If WikiLeaks does not find a way to remove this blockade, given our current levels of expenditure we will simply not be able to continue by the turn of the New Year."

The Australian condemned the blockade as politically motivated and directly linked to "Cablegate", coming within days of the website's release of tens of thousands of classified US diplomatic cables in November last year.

Many relate to the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan while others contain frank and sometimes embarrassing assessments of world leaders made by US diplomats.

Assange said WikiLeaks was taking legal action against the blockade in several states including Britain, United States and Australia and has 100,000 publications pending, but warned it was facing an "existential threat".

The former computer hacker said WikiLeaks needed $3.5 million (2.5 million euros) to get through the next 12 months. WikiLeaks spokesman Kristinn Hrafnsson explained that before the funding squeeze, average monthly donations exceeded 100,000 euros, but since then they had plunged to between 6,000 and 7,000 euros.

the matter, MENA said. On Sunday, Libya's National Transitional Council declared the country's liberation in the wake of the capture and death of ousted leader Moamer Kadhafi, who ruled for 42 years.

According to a 2010 Amnesty International report "during the 1980s dozens of Libyan dissidents living abroad were extrajudicially executed, reportedly by agents acting on behalf of the Libyan state."

It said reports of extrajudicial executions carried on into the 1990s.

Weapons found in Libyan embassy in Cairo

CAIRO (AFP) - The Libyan embassy in Cairo said yesterday that it found a large cache of weapons on the premises it believes the former regime planned to use to kill dissidents in Egypt.

"Among the weapons found were pistols, rifles and machine guns -- all with silencers," the embassy said in a statement.

"The former Libyan regime kept those weapons to assassinate Libyan opposition figures in Egypt," according to the statement, carried by Egypt's official MENA news agency.

The embassy urged Egyptian authorities to investigate

Divers find Dutch WWII submarine off Borneo after 70 years

Photo published in the Dutch newspaper Nieuwe Tilburgsche Courant dated 31 January 1934 when she was handed over by the yard to the navy.

THE HAGUE (AFP) - Sport divers off the northern coast of Borneo have discovered the wreck of a Dutch World War II submarine, missing for the past 70 years, the Dutch defence ministry said yesterday.

"The Hr. Ms. KXVI, which has been missing with a crew of 36 since 1941, has been found," it said in a statement released in The Hague.

"It was discovered by Australian and Singaporean sport divers in the waters 'above' the island of Borneo after a tip-off from a local fisherman," the ministry added.

It did not state the exact location of the wreck out of respect for the dead crew and their descendants.

The 1,000-ton KXVI was part of the Allied fleet tasked with stopping the Japanese invasion of the then Dutch East Indies. It torpedoed the Japanese submarine hunter Sagiri on Christmas Eve 1941, only to be sunk itself the following day by a Japanese submarine.

The latest find brings to six the number of Dutch submarines lost during the war that have now been found, the ministry said. Only one wreck, that of the Hr. Ms. O 13, remains missing somewhere in the North Sea.

Some 2,400 search and rescue teams from 45 cities and more than 200 ambulances have been rushed to the region, according to the government.

The military said six battalions were also involved in search and rescue efforts.

Six helicopters, including four helicopter ambulances, as well as C-130 military cargo planes were dispatched to the area carrying tents, food and medicine.

By mid-day Deputy Prime Minister Besir Atalay said that rescuers had managed to get access to all the quake-hit zones in Van province, including remote villages.

Atalay said 29 villages and 40 percent of Erzurum town were without power.

GPS shoes for Alzheimer's patients to hit US

--The first shoes with built-in GPS devices -- to help track down dementia-suffering seniors who wander off and get lost -- are set to hit the US market this month, the manufacturer says.

Andrew Carle, a professor at George Mason University's College of Health and Human Services who was an adviser on the project, said the shoes are likely to save lives and avoid embarrassing and costly incidents with the elderly.

"It's especially important for people in the earliest stages of Alzheimer's who are at the highest risk," Carle told AFP.

"They might be living in their home but they're confused. They go for a walk and they can get lost for days."

Carle said studies indicate more than five million Americans suffer from Alzheimer's, a number expected to quadruple in the coming years. He said 60 percent of sufferers will wander and become lost and up to half of those lost who are not found within 24 hours may die, from dehydration, exposure or injury.

Other devices such as bracelets or pendants can provide similar protection but seniors often reject these.

"The primary reason is that paranoia is a manifestation of the disease," Carle said. "If you put something on someone with Alzheimer's that they don't recognize, they remove it. If it's a wristwatch and it's not their wristwatch, they will take it off. So you have to hide it."

The GPS system, which is implanted in the heel of what appears to be a normal walking shoe, allows family members or carers to monitor the wearer and to set up a "geofence" that would trigger an alert if the person strays beyond a certain area.

The shoes are being developed by GTX Corp., which makes miniaturized Global Positioning Satellite tracking and location-transmitting technology, and Aetrex. They received certification from the Federal Communications Commission this year for the system.

The makers say the market for such shoes is growing, given the soaring costs of Alzheimer's.

Health Tip: Focus on Emotional Health

-- Being emotionally healthy can make it easier to build lasting relationships, help you feel good about yourself and deal with the problems of everyday life.

The American Academy of Family Physicians suggests how to help improve your emotional health:

- Find healthy, appropriate ways to share your feelings.
- Don't get bogged down by the negatives of life.
- Develop a strong network of social support, develop a healthy sense of perspective and learn to accommodate change.
- Find ways to help your mind and body relax, such as meditation.
- Keep your body physically healthy with nutritious foods, regular exercise and by avoiding alcohol and drugs.

Steve Jobs bio, candid portrait of complicated man

--(AFP)- The eagerly awaited biography of Apple co-founder Steve Jobs hit bookstores Monday, painting a candid portrait of a technology visionary who could be as bruising as he was brilliant.

The 630-page book, titled simply "Steve Jobs," is already number one on the list of best-sellers for Amazon's Kindle and goes on sale less than three weeks after Jobs died at the age of 56 after a long battle with pancreatic cancer.

Written by Walter Isaacson, a former managing editor of Time magazine, the book is the result of 40 interviews Isaacson conducted with Jobs since 2009 and with over 100 family members, friends, business rivals and colleagues.

The book recounts the now familiar story of how barefoot college dropout Jobs and computer whiz Steve Wozniak began building the first Apple computers in the garage of the Jobs family home in Los Altos, California, in 1976.

The last word in the book belongs to Jobs as he attempts to define his legacy to his biographer.

"My passion has been to build an enduring company where people were motivated to make great products," Jobs said.

"Everything else was secondary."

Radiation hotspot near Tokyo linked to Fukushima: officials

TOKYO (AFP) - Radiation levels as high as those in the evacuation zone around Japan's Fukushima nuclear plant have been detected in a Tokyo suburb, and are likely linked to the disaster, officials said Monday.

The hotspot, a small area of about one metre (three feet) radius, was found in a vacant lot in Kashiwa city, Chiba prefecture, a commuter suburb of the capital, officials said.

Radiation levels of 2 microsieverts per hour were detected one metre above the surface of the soil, equivalent to some areas in the evacuation zone around the crippled Fukushima Daiichi nuclear power plant.

City officials have also found contamination levels as high as 57.5 microsieverts per hour in the soil, sparking radiation fears in the neighbourhood some 195 kilometres (120 miles) from the accident site.

Inspectors from the science and technology ministry believe the hotspot was created after radioactive caesium carried by rain water became concentrated in a small area because of a broken gutter.

Earlier this month the alarm was raised in western Tokyo after a radiation hotspot was discovered, but later determined to have been caused by some old paint.

Variable winds, weather and topography result in an uneven spread of contamination from the nuclear plant, experts say, and radioactive elements tend to concentrate in places where dust and rain water accumulate such as drains and ditches.

As researchers carry out tests to map how far contamination has spread from the plant, radiation fears are a daily fact of life in many parts of Japan following the earthquake and tsunami-sparked meltdowns at the plant, with reported cases of contaminated water, beef, vegetables, tea and seafood.

Bolivia reaches agreement with Amazon protesters

LA PAZ (AFP) - The Bolivian government and representatives of Amazon native protesters reached an agreement on Monday ending two months of protests that have eroded support for President Evo Morales.

Morales announced on Friday he was scrapping a hugely controversial plan to build a highway through an Amazon ecological reserve that triggered widespread protests -- but the protesters had 15 other demands they wanted addressed.

Communications Minister Ivan Canelas announced that a deal had been reached on all the protester demands following marathon negotiations that ended at dawn Monday.

The lengthy talks allowed "all points to be resolved, with deadlines for them to be fulfilled," added Fernando Vargas, a leader of the Amazon indigenous protesters.

The Brazil-financed road project was to form part of a network linking land-locked Bolivia to both the Pacific through Chile and the Atlantic through Brazil.

Some 2,000 protesters, who set out in August and trekked 600 kilometres (370 miles) to La Paz, were met as heroes as they entered the city in the high Andes and made their way to camp out near the presidential palace.

About 50,000 people from three different native groups live in the remote Isiboro Secure National Park and Indigenous Territory (TIPNIS) in the humid Amazon lowlands.

About 100 Amazon protesters remain camped in La Paz waiting for Congress to approve an amendment sent by Morales to end the highway project.

Turkey, a country at seismic crossroads

PARIS (AFP) - The 7.2-magnitude earthquake that struck Van province in eastern Turkey on Sunday, causing hundreds of fatalities, underscores the country's fate to be straddling one of the world's most active seismic zones.

Turkey is squeezed between two tectonic plates -- Eurasia to the north and Africa/Arabia to the south -- that are grinding into each other, according to France's Paris Institute of the Physics of the Globe (IPGP).

Sunday's quake occurred on the East Anatolian Fault where an arrow-shaped plate, comprising the Arabian peninsula, part of southeastern Turkey and Iraq, is forcing its way under the Eurasian plate at an average speed of 2.4 centimetres (one inch) per year.

This same fault was to blame for the Spitak quake in Armenia in 1988, when more than 20,000 people were killed by a 6.9-magnitude event.

In 1976, several villages on the Turkish-Iranian border were wiped out by a 7.3-magnitude quake that occurred around 70 kilometres (44 miles) from Sunday's quake.

Turkey's other big seismic front is the North Anatolian Fault, where several quakes occurred last century along almost its entire length.

A 7.8-magnitude quake at Erzincan in 1939 claimed nearly 33,000 lives, and the 1999 Izmit quake, estimated at 7.6 to 7.7 magnitude, left a toll of 17,000 dead and 50,000 injured, while around half a million people were left homeless.

Overheating economy could spoil Kirchner's party

BUENOS AIRES (AFP) - President Cristina Kirchner has just won a landslide re-election, but Argentina's nine-year boom is under threat from an overheating economy and runaway inflation that could well spoil the party.

Kirchner, Argentina's first female leader, swept to victory late Sunday with 53.96 percent of the vote -- a larger share than any president since democracy was restored to the Latin American giant in 1983.

"All the power to the president," read the headline of La Nacion daily, as reports said her party had also regained full control of Congress.

It was a massive vindication of both the glamorous leader and the policies of "Kirchnerism," started almost nine years ago by her late husband Nestor Kirchner.

"Count on me to continue pursuing the project," Kirchner, a 58-year-old former lawyer, said in a triumphant speech to a rowdy crowd in Buenos Aires.

But the liberal spending that has sustained strong growth -- an average of between six and nine percent a year since Nestor Kirchner was elected in 2003 -- has fed runaway inflation that economists put at about 25 or 30 percent.

"Numerous economic indicators are in the red. The economy is on automatic pilot," warned Alberto Fernandez, a former top official in the Kirchner governments.

With the exception of 2009, when the economy contracted 0.9 percent in the midst of an international crisis, Argentina has beaten all records for growth. Consumption is booming and unemployment is barely seven percent.

Argentina's re-elected President Cristina Kirchner

The current growth rate, above eight percent, is powered by high global prices for natural resources and soy beans, of which Argentina is one of the world's biggest exporters.

The price of a ton of soy is currently over $500, more than double what it was in 2001 when president Fernando de la Rúa was forced from office amid a financial crisis and riots over austerity measures.

But Argentina's superheated economy also has a downside -- a 35 percent increase in public spending and an inflation rate of between 25 and 30 percent this year, according to independent economists.

Programs that have reinforced core support for the party -- part of Argentina's powerful Peronist movement -- include pensions and child benefit for poor families as well as subsidies for transport and utilities.

Kirchner's closest rival -- socialist Hermes Binner, who won less than 17 percent of the vote -- warned that Argentina, which relies heavily on exports to Brazil and China, will soon feel the effects of the global economic crisis, as growth is predicted to slow next year.

Fernandez, meanwhile, warned of rising concern over capital flight -- almost $70 billion has left the country in the past four years.

"'Deepen the model' may have been a useful slogan for the electoral campaign but it's too imprecise to calm the anxieties of multiple actors in the economic system," wrote analyst Sergio Berensztein in La Nacion daily.

Central bank reserves will not be able to stretch to paying back debt payments of $4 billion due in 2012, Fernandez warned.

Europe bids to ease Italy debt worries

BRUSSELS (AFP) - Europe rushed Monday to ease worries Italy could become the next Greece, needing a bailout, as negotiators battled to complete a deal with banks on a big debt write-off for Athens.

With Italian bond yields still hovering near the six-percent levels that triggered large-scale intervention by the European Central Bank in August, a top EU official said it might be "time to put the plan to Italy."

Eurozone aid comes with strings attached and Italian Prime Minister Silvio Berlusconi's government spent Monday scrambling to agree new budget cuts and reforms before the second summit in four days.

"No-one has anything to fear" over Italy's debt, Berlusconi said in a statement, adding that there was no need for a lecture from the country's partners.

"No-one is in a position to teach lessons to their partners," he said, despite the focus on Italy's 1.9 trillion euro debt mountain.

Harley-Davidson recalls 308,000 motorcycles

WASHINGTON (AFP) - Harley-Davidson said Monday it is recalling more than 308,000 of its prized motorcycles due to problems with a rear brake light switch.

Harley said the recall involved Touring, CVO Touring and Trike models made between June 6, 2008, and September 16, 2011.

About 250,000 of the bikes are in the United States and 50,000 in other countries, it said.

Harley said the voluntary recall would cost it $10-$12 million, to be included in its fourth-quarter accounts.

Obama bypasses Congress with mortgage plan

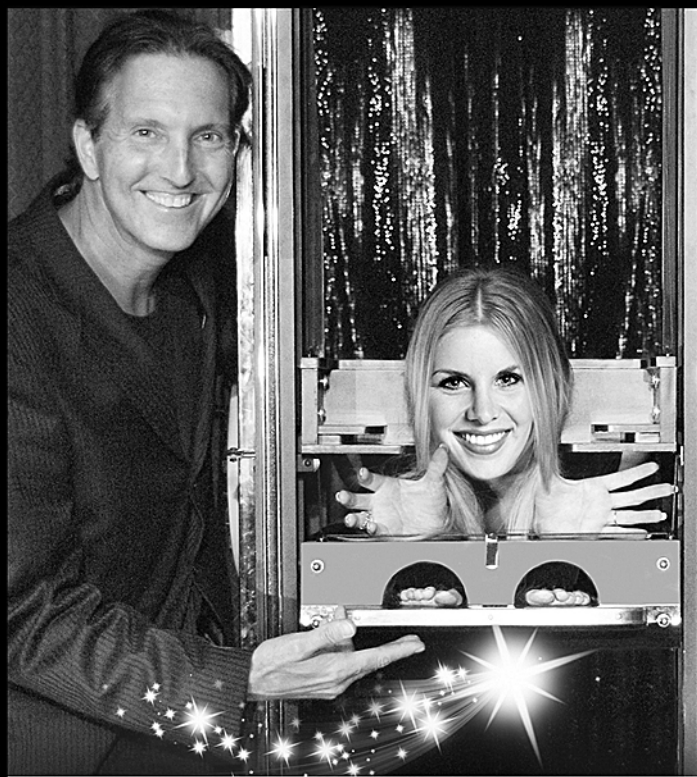

LAS VEGAS (AFP) - President Barack Obama traveled Monday to Las Vegas, epicenter of the real estate meltdown, to unveil a plan to limit damage from the housing market's downward spiral on the broader US economy.

Thwarted by Republican opposition to his bigger jobs and stimulus package, Obama plans this week to unveil initiatives that do not need congressional backing, starting with mortgage relief that could help millions of Americans.

The president's three-day, tri-state tour was to take him first to Nevada, where the bottom has fallen out of the housing market and which has the highest unemployment of any US state -- 13.4 percent.

Defense to launch fightback at Jackson doc's trial

LOS ANGELES (AFP) - Lawyers for Michael Jackson's doctor hope to launch a last-ditch fightback this week, after a month of prosecution testimony mostly implicating medic Conrad Murray over the star's 2009 death.

Murray's attorney Ed Chernoff is to begin presenting defense witnesses at the Los Angeles Superior Court, where the involuntary manslaughter trial could go to the jury as early as the end of this week.

So far witnesses called by prosecutors have given a litany of evidence suggesting Murray was grossly negligent by administering a deadly cocktail of drugs to help the King of Pop sleep, and abandoning him at the vital moment.

The 58-year-old Trinidad-born medic, who has sat grim-faced throughout proceedings, faces four years in jail if found guilty at the long-awaited trial.

The court case -- attended near daily by Jackson's mother Katherine and father Joe as well as siblings including La-Toya and Janet -- opened on September 27 with a double shock for the family and fans demonstrating outside.

First was a photo of a horribly thin looking Jackson on a hospital gurney after his death from an overdose from "acute propofol intoxication" on June 25, 2009, at his rented Los Angeles mansion.

But perhaps even more shocking was the audio tape of a heavily-drugged Jackson, telling Murray -- who was being paid $150,000 a month by the star -- weeks before his death of his hopes for a series of comeback shows in London.

The hushed court heard how Jackson's daughter Paris screamed "Daddy!" as she saw her apparently lifeless father, whose body had an intravenous (IV) drip in one leg, a condom catheter on his penis, and an oxygen tube under his nose.

Paramedics described how Jackson appeared to have been dead for some time when they arrived, but were persuaded by Murray to take him to the UCLA Medical Center emergency room to try to revive him anyway.

Murray's lawyers say they plan to present some 15 witnesses, including medical experts, character witnesses and police officers. They have their work cut out over the coming days.

Earnings unreal for 'Paranormal Activity 3'

LOS ANGELES (AFP) - "Paranormal Activity 3" scared up absolutely unreal earnings in its premiere weekend, taking in more than $54 million at the North American box office, industry estimates showed.

The reheated, low-budget fright formula flick was red hot, with an estimated $54.02 million dollars in ticket sales on week-end, industry monitor Exhibitor Relations reported.

It bumped the boxing robots of "Real Steel" out of the top spot. The Disney hit for children starring Hugh Jackman took in $11.3 million in second place.

A remake of the hit 1980s dance romp "Footloose" slipped to third place, with a haul of $10.8 million.

A 3-D reimagining of Dumas' "Three Musketeers" was in fourth place with $8.8 million in its first weekend out, followed by political thriller "The Ides of March," starring George Clooney and Ryan Gosling, with $4.9 million at the box office.

"Dolphin Tale," a feel-good family film starring Morgan Freeman about a boy who helps a dolphin get a prosthetic tail, netted $4.2 million this weekend, in sixth place, and $64.4 million to date.

"Moneyball," a sports drama starring Brad Pitt as a baseball coach, was in the number seven spot, taking in $4.05 million, trailed by comedy Johnny English Reborn" with $3.8 million in eighth.

Sci-fi horror flick "The Thing," a prelude to the 1980s film of the same name, took in $3.1 million for ninth place.

It came in just ahead of "50/50," a comedy about a 27-year-old man's battle against cancer starring Joseph Gordon Levitt and Seth Rogen, which earned $2.8 million.

ART Exhibition 'Destinations' — by Local Artist Grace Ashruf

- Grace Ashruf is very proud to exhibit her latest collection of original Art titled 'Destinations' on Wednesday, October 26th. The exposition will take place in the OLD Garage Cordia Building, at L.G. Smith Blvd. 114 and continue for two weeks.

This collection of 30 original artworks is a fusion of Contemporary Art and names of Aruban Neighborhoods. The works not only reflect the names of popular places on the island, but also many of the ancient aboriginal names given them by the native Indians. Much of the true significance of these names and their origins remain unknown.

"Each painting in this collection consists of 3 layers" Grace explains, "first, a heavily textured base composition, which is then flavored with a very abstracted landscape; on top of that, a color composition. It is like I have created 3 paintings on one canvas. I don't set out completely to create a work, instead, once started, I let the material and my intuition lead the way."

Strong composition, visual texture, bold use of color, and trusting her intuition are just some elements that Grace employs in creating works. Her artworks are modern, colorful and vibrant. It is a portrayal of passionate sensations and impressions of feelings. The result is work that evokes a strong response by viewers. "I want people to be viscerally moved when they look at my work. The intellectual stuff can come afterwards," the artist said.

Grace has presented a number of solo and collective exhibitions to the public over the years, from which she has gained a good reputation and positive responses.

This year the artist will donate 10% of revenues from this exhibition to Kinderhuis Casa Cuna in Aruba in the same manner she has donated proceeds from her 2009 solo show to the Kinderhuis Imeldahof.

Grace Ashruf is grateful to Garage Cordia for the kind use of their old facility.

A celebratory cocktail will toast the opening night, from 7.30 pm to 10.00 pm – all are welcome. The exhibition is open for (2)Two Weeks, from Monday to Friday from 10-2 pm / 4-6 pm and Saturday from 10-5 pm. Entrance is free.

Adorable and affordable; 5 Burgers Aruba offers an island twist to the great American Burger

Aaron and Manager Marc Anthony

Expatriates residing on Aruba, Aaron and Rosie Walisever are living their dream: a home on paradise while welcoming all and sundry to their proud undertaking, 5 Burgers Aruba. Some may be quite well acquainted with a nationally known U.S franchise bearing the name "5", and patrons can expect the same great quality between the buns, but an expanded menu and Rosie and Aaron's fanatical dedication to giving their customers what they really want has resulted in a unique menu.

"You never get a second chance to make a first impression," comments Aaron; and upon entering 5 Burgers Aruba in The Village Mall in Palm Beach, one is struck by utterly spotless surroundings and a smiling, friendly, attentive service crew. Of course, the main item on the menu is burgers-the way they were meant to be, thick and juicy, made fresh daily and 100% pure beef, the kind that made the hamburger a traditional American treat.

Prices vary only slightly between regular and small (basically 2 patties or 1) with specialty items such as Gouda Burger, Farmer's Burger, Man Burger (almost 12 ounces of choice beef), and a Western Burger with crispy onion rings and BBQ sauce. All of these can be personalized with an incredible array of toppings, (mushrooms, jalapeño peppers, bacon, cheese, lettuce, tomato...whatever the list goes on) at absolutely no extra cost.

5 Burger portions are ENORMOUS! Aaron suggests that even their small serving of fries, which are made from hand-cut fresh Idaho potatoes, is enough to be shared by two. He was very amused to watch a famous French chef demonstrating the best way to make fried potatoes on a gourmet cooking show and could only comment "He stole my recipe!" Try them the English way-with vinegar, and you'll wonder how you ever ate fries without it. This same 5-star chef also swears by Gouda as the best topping for the ideal gourmet cheeseburger.

If you are a fan of crispy friend onion rings, as we are at THE MORNING NEWS, you cannot leave there without trying their secret recipe batter-dipped gourmet rings, made from fresh, not frozen onions. Unquestionably, the best we have had anywhere, and for those that like a little spice, the fried jalapeños are a real treat. Aaron and Rosie have expanded their menu to accommodate certain tastes and dietary needs; they offer a tasty grilled chicken sandwich as well.

5 Burgers Aruba is open for lunch & dinner - daily hours are Noon to 10-ish; delivery is available to both the high-rise and low-rise hotel and beach district for orders over $50. Enjoy a great lunch without ever leaving the beach by calling 586-3904. However, we suggest you stop by and enjoy their authentic, heartfelt hospitality; it is not unusual for either owner or Manager Marc Anthony when things are not too busy, to sit and chat while sharing their knowledge of the island. Totally yummy and fun plus a great deal for a quality burger, they are definitely worth a visit

Packers outlast Vikings to remain unbeaten

Ragnar, mascot for the Minnesota Vikings, shakes hands with Aaron Rodgers #12 of the Green Bay Packers after the Packers defeated the Vikings on October 23, 2011 at Hubert H. Humphrey Metrodome in Minneapolis, Minnesota

MINNEAPOLIS (AFP) - Aaron Rodgers threw three touchdown passes to spark the unbeaten Green Bay Packers over Minnesota 33-27 on Sunday, boosting the reigning Super Bowl champions to 7-0 on the season.

Rodgers completed 24-of-30 passes for 335 yards and Mason Crosby kicked four field goals, including a club-record 58-yarder in the third quarter, as the Packers matched their best start to an NFL season since 1962.

Vikings rookie Christian Ponder, making his first start, completed 13-of-32 for 219 yards and two touchdowns but threw two interceptions to Charles Woodson in the third quarter, when the Packers rallied to outscore Minnesota 20-0.

"There's not a lot of panic on this team," Rodgers said.

Adrian Peterson ran 24 times for 175 yards and a touchdown and Ponder tossed a 24-yard touchdown pass to Michael Jenkins with 7:49 to play, but the Vikings, 1-6, could not score again and the Packers won their 700th all-time victory.

The Packers have a bye next week before traveling to San Diego.

"It means we get a week off to get healthy," Rodgers said. "Then it gets even more difficult."

Nothing was difficult for New Orleans in a 62-7 rout of winless Indianapolis where the host Saints (5-2) matched the third-most points in any game in NFL history in winning a rematch of their victory in last year's Super Bowl.

The Colts (0-7) surrendered the most points in a regular-season game since 1985. The only larger regular-season one-game total scored by any NFL team was produced by Washington in a 72-41 victory over the New York Giants in 1966.

In the NFL's fifth annual regular-season game at London, Matt Forte ran for 145 yards and a touchdown and the Bears defeated Tampa Bay 24-18 at Wembley Stadium, leaving both clubs 4-3.

Tim Tebow, making his first start of the season, threw two touchdown passes in the final 2:44 of the fourth quarter and set up Matt Prater's 52-yard field goal that gave Denver an 18-15 victory over winless Miami, who fell to 0-6.

Pittsburgh's Ben Roethlisberger threw a 95-yard touchdown to Mike Wallace, the longest pass play in Steelers history, and the Steelers defeated Arizona 32-20, inflicting a fifth loss in a row on the Cardinals.

Plaxico Burress caught three touchdown passes, taking the lead for good on the last of them after an interception by Darrelle Revis, to power the New York Jets past AFC West leaders San Diego 27-21.

Matt Ryan ran for one touchdown and threw for another while Matt Bryant kicked three field goals to push Atlanta (4-3) past hosts Detroit 23-16, handing the Lions their second loss in a row after a 5-0 start.

Lions quarterback Matthew Stafford suffered a right leg injury in a failed last-gasp bid for a tying touchdown and was in a walking boot after the game.

Atlanta tight end Tony Gonzalez, 35, made five catches to move into second place on the NFL all-time receptions list with 1,104, still 445 grabs shy of Jerry Rice's career record.

Kendrick Lewis and Brandon Flowers each ran interceptions for touchdowns to spark the Kansas City Chiefs over hosts Oakland 28-0. Kyle Boller and Carson Palmer, obtained last week from Cincinnati, were each picked off three times.

Arian Foster ran for 115 yards and two touchdowns and had 119 yards receiving, including a 78-yard touchdown catch, as Houston routed Tennessee 41-7, giving the Texans the AFC South lead at 4-3. The Titans fell to 3-3.

Dallas rusher DeMarco Murray ran for a club-record 253 yards, including a 91-yard touchdown romp, as the Cowboys beat winless St. Louis 34-7. The NFL's most anemic offense and worst run defense struggled as the Rams fell to 0-6.

Rookie Cam Newton threw for 256 yards and a touchdown and ran for 59 yards and another score to lead the Carolina Panthers (205) past visiting Washington 33-20.

Phil Dawson kicked field goals of 52 and 53 yards to give Cleveland a 6-3 victory over visiting Seattle.

Icon Sabonis to head Lithuanian federation

VILNIUS (AFP) - Lithuanian basketball legend Arvydas Sabonis was elected head of the Baltic nation's basketball federation in a unanimous vote on Monday, just a month after suffering a heart attack.

The 46-year-old will replace Vladas Garastas, his former coach at both international and club level, who has headed the federation since 2003.

"Basketball makes Lithuania famous all over the world and unites the nation," Sabonis told a federation conference where he received the votes of all 98 participants.

"I will be pleased if I can contribute to basketball's development with my work, experience and will," he added at the event held in the central city of Kaunas.

Sabonis, who was the only candidate for the post, decided to run despite suffering a heart attack in September.

Sabonis was inducted into the NBA's Hall of Fame earlier this year.

Considered one of the top passing centres of all time, he played seven seasons for the Portland Trail Blazers between 1995 and 2003.

He also won Olympic gold for the Soviet Union, and two bronzes for Lithuania once it returned to international competition after breaking free from five decades of Kremlin rule in 1990.

Sabonis is a household name in Lithuania, a nation of three million where basketball is often dubbed the second religion, after Catholicism.

One in 34 of the population plays the sport, according to figures from world governing body FIBA, and Lithuania's national teams are regularly among the globe's top rankers.

Hernandez signs new five-year United contract

LONDON (AFP) - Mexico striker Javier Hernandez has signed a new five-year contract with Manchester United that will keep him at the club until 2016, the Premier League champions announced on Monday.

Hernandez, nicknamed 'Chicharito', joined United from Guadalajara in the summer of 2010 and enjoyed a superb first season, netting 20 goals in all competitions as United won the league and reached the Champions League final.

"Playing for Manchester United has been a dream come true for me," he said.

Tseng gifts cash for Taiwan's next generation

TAIPEI (AFP) - World number one Yani Tseng celebrated an emphatic win on home soil by handing over US$100,000 -- a third of her prize money -- to help develop a new generation of Taiwanese golfers.

Tseng, whose victory in the US LPGA's inaugural Sunrise Taiwan Championship was splashed across front pages in Taipei, said she hoped to boost the sport in her homeland, which traditionally prefers baseball and basketball.

"It is a long road to develop and groom a golfer. Young golfers need as much support as possible to help them compete with the best from the rest of the world," the 22-year-old said late Sunday.

"I hope I can set an example so more people will follow suit to help chip in and contribute to this cause in an attempt to bring out more young talents."

Tseng, who has now won seven times on this year's tour, will donate the money through the Golf Association Republic of China, a programme that helps train and develop young golfing talent in Taiwan.

Tseng shot a final-round six-under-par 66 Sunday to finish at 16-under and record a five-stroke victory over Spain's Azahara Munoz and Amy Yang of South Korea at Sunrise Golf and Country Club in Yangmei.

Disgraced Landis faces 18-month suspended sentence

PARIS (AFP) - The prosecutor in a computer hacking case against Floyd Landis on Monday called for an 18-month suspended prison sentence for the disgraced American cyclist.

The French state prosecutor called for the Tribunal Correctionnel -- a criminal court -- in Nanterre just outside Paris to hand down the same suspended sentence to Landis' former coach Arnie Baker, in his case for "concealment."

They claim that both men were aware of the "fraudulous origin" of documents pirated from the French Anti-Doping Laboratory (LNDD) in 2006.

Landis and Baker stand accused of "fraudulently breaking into a computer system" in a case brought by media company Vivendi.

Landis, now 36, is suspected of illegally obtaining documentation in a bid to contest his positive dope-test results from stage 16 of the 2006 Tour de France.

He was stripped of his victory on that year's Tour, and after spending years and millions of dollars in an effort to clear his name, he finally confessed to doping last year.

Bayern's Boateng banned for two games

BERLIN (AFP) - Bayern Munich's Germany defender Jerome Boateng was on Monday banned for the next two German league games after he was sent off in the Bundesliga leaders' shock defeat at Hanover on Sunday.

The 23-year-old was shown a straight red card for a shove on Hanover defender Christian Schulz, which sparked a first-half melee in a bad-tempered match that saw Bayern beaten 2-1.

The disciplinary committee of the German Football Federation (DFB) gave Boateng the ban, which keeps out of Saturday's league visit of Nuremberg and the game on November 6 against Augsburg.

Sharapova looks for golden final flourish

ISTANBUL (AFP) - Maria Sharapova will crown one of tennis's most unlikely comebacks if she regains the title at the $5,000,000 WTA Championships which start today.

Sharapova has gradually worked her way back to world number two after an operation in 2008 on a rotator cuff, the kind of shoulder injury from which most players never fully recover.

Arguably the former Wimbledon, US Open, and Australian Open champion still isn't quite the player she was, but has nevertheless achieved her highest ranking in three years and qualified for the tour's climax for the first time since 2007.

There is even an outside chance of Sharapova regaining the world number one ranking, but she would have to win the WTA Championships title whilst Caroline Wozniacki did poorly.

"I just feel a sense of evolution," said Sharapova. "You know, this year I feel like I've grown as a player and I've gotten better. It gives me a lot of confidence moving forward."

Indian debut race not sold-out

NEW DELHI (AFP) - Tickets for India's inaugural Grand Prix have not sold out, prompting organisers to slash prices in an effort to fill the 120,000-capacity circuit.

On Monday, tickets were still available online in all but the cheapest category -- the 2,500-rupee ($55) area.

The private Jaypee group, which has spent $400 million in building the new state-of-the-art Buddh International circuit and bring the event to India, said it was still hopeful of selling the remaining tickets for this weekend's race.

"We have sold close to 80,000 tickets which is pretty encouraging considering that it's the first F1 race ever in the country," a Jaypee spokesman told AFP.

"Of course we would have been happier had we sold off

90 percent tickets because ticket sales are the only source of revenue for us. But there are still a few days to go and we are keeping our fingers crossed."

The business conglomerate has also decided to offer discounted race day tickets in the hope of boosting sales.

"Fans can now opt for only race day tickets at discounted price instead of the season tickets which are a little on the high side. A lot of big companies are also in the process of booking corporate boxes," said the spokesman.

At 2,500 rupees, the cheapest ticket is also far beyond the reach of the vast majority of people in the country.

McLaren-Mercedes driver Lewis Hamilton however said over the weekend that he had no doubt that the Indian race would be well-attended.

Red-hot Holland helps Rangers tie series

DALLAS (AFP) - Derek Holland pitched 8 1/3 shutout innings and Mike Napoli blasted a three-run homer as the Texas Rangers defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 4-0 to level the 107th World Series at two games each.

Josh Hamilton also had a run-scoring double in the opening inning for the Rangers, who are trying to win the first World Series in their 51-year franchise history.

"He was a thoroughbred tonight," Rangers manager Ron Washington said of Holland. "He showed the world what he is capable of doing."

It was Holland who picked up the pieces for the Rangers on a warm fall evening in game four after they were blown out 16-7 one night earlier.

Texas' victory means the best-of-seven Major League Baseball championship series will go back to St. Louis for game six on Wednesday.

"I felt like I had to really prove myself," Holland said. "I wanted to get the momentum back on our side. I did everything I could to prepare for it and get ready."

Holland, who turned 25 earlier this month, struck out seven and walked two to earn his second win of the post-season, blanking the Cardinals in front of a sell-out crowd of 51,539 on Sunday.

Derek Holland #45 of the Texas Rangers pitches

"Growing up it was a dream of mine to pitch in the World Series and get a win. I wanted to show that I belong here to begin with and I can pitch in a big game."

The Rangers have won all five of Holland's starts in the playoffs and he pitched well into the night Sunday, giving the Texas beleaguered bullpen a much-needed rest.

Texas will also host game five on Monday, when Rangers left-hander C.J. Wilson will go up against Cardinals ace Chris Carpenter.

"He's a great pitcher," Napoli said of Carpenter. "Hopefully we will get some good pitching and defence and scuff away a couple of runs."

Washington pulled Holland with one out in the ninth inning and put in closer Neftali Feliz who got the final two outs.

Holland pleaded with Washington to remain in the game but when he heard the familiar chuckle he knew his time was up.

"I was begging. I didn't get on my knees. And then typically he gave that nice little ha, ha, ha! That little laugh he always does. I was trying everything I could to stay out there."

Napoli hit a 392-foot missile to left field bleachers in the bottom of the sixth for the Rangers who continued their streak of not losing two games in a row. Texas haven't lost back-to-back contests since late August.

Holland retired all three St. Louis batters in order in the top of the seventh starting with Albert Pujols. Pujols, who hit three homers and six RBIs in game three, grounded out to Holland as did the next batter Matt Holliday. Holland then capped off the inning by striking out designated hitter Lance Berkman.

"He worked us over," said St. Louis manager Tony LaRussa of Holland. "Give him credit. He shut us down."

Cardinals starter Edwin Jackson took the loss, allowing three hits and walking seven batters in 5 1/3 innings.

The Cardinals were shut out just one night after scoring 16 runs, making it the largest run differential from one game to the next in World Series history.

"Good pitching always stops good hitting," said LaRussa. "We pitched pretty well and it was a 1-0 game. They won in the sixth with three runs."
